

AFFILIATE MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

Affiliate membership is focused on bringing together undergraduate and graduate or medical students, postdoctoral researchers, medical residents and fellows, and other research members who are not faculty, so they can take full advantage of all that ASTMH has to offer as full Society members. Affiliate membership covers the primary contact plus up to 15 trainees in the categories described above, who are new members at the point of sign-up. For those with working relationships with colleagues in LMICs, an additional Affiliate Membership can be generated for the overseas partner institution, at a substantially reduced rate.

Major Advantages for Trainees:

- Discounted registration rates for the Annual Meeting, Update Course and CTropMed® Exam
- Access to the latest research at the Annual Meeting and in the American Journal of Tropical Medicine and Hygiene
- Applications for unique research and travel grant and award opportunities through ASTMH
- Free membership in one or more of the following subgroups:
 - Arbovirology (ACAV)
 - Clinical Tropical Medicine and Travelers' Health (ACCTMTH)
 - Global Health (ACGH)
 - Molecular, Cellular and Immunoparasitology (ACMCIP)
 - Medical Entomology (ACME)
- Networking and collaboration opportunities
- Member-only access to free webinars and content on GOTropMEd, our online education site
- Opportunities for leadership roles in the Society and vote in the upcoming Board election
- Discounts on author fees for our Society's American Journal of Tropical Medicine & Hygiene

Benefits for the Institution:

- Membership for the designated university faculty member or institutional representative, program director, or NGO point of contact
- Opportunities to link with other ASTMH affiliates and members connected to research, programs and funding in tropical medicine/global health
- Affiliate members will be listed and recognized on the ASTMH website and within the ASTMH Annual Meeting program
